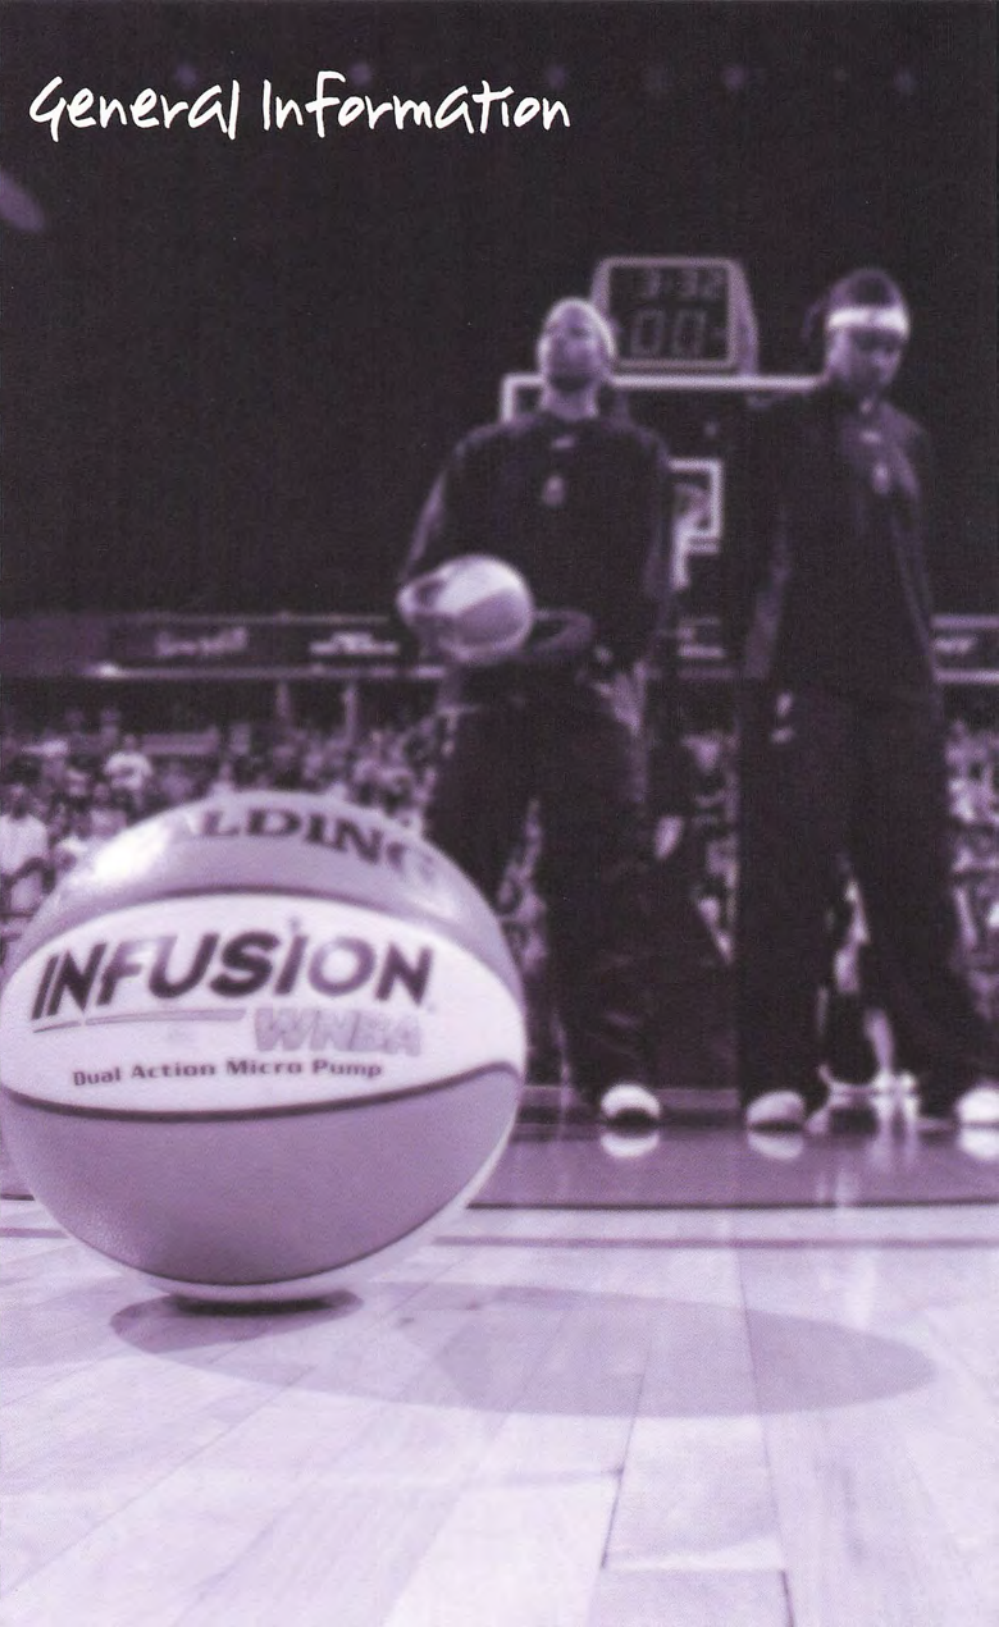
General Information



Hard-Working, Customer Service-Driven Family Taking Maloof Sports & Entertainment to the Upper Echelon of Professional Sports and Entertainment

Maloof Family

In just six years, the Maloof family has guided the Sacramento Kings and Monarchs as well as ARCO Arena to unparalleled heights. Under Maloof Sports & Entertainment, the Kings and Monarchs have advanced to the NBA and WNBA Playoffs, respectively, and produced entertaining basketball that has been seen throughout the world.

Even more impressive than the company's competitive accomplishments has been Maloof Sports & Entertainment's significant impact within the community. The Maloof family's business philosophy strongly incorporates the idea of making a meaningful difference in the lives of those in need or at risk in the community by working to advance the cause of literacy in the region through the donations of Monarchs Reading and Learning Centers. The company has earmarked over $1 million annually in the way of charitable gifts and donations, including a minimum of $100,000 in proceeds from a selected Kings preseason game donated to local charities as a tribute to the family's late father and husband under the name of the George J. Maloof Sr. Community Cup. In the past, the annual $100,000 gift has allowed the Sacramento Airport Little League to completely refurbish its little league sports complex, the Sacramento Unified School District to repair a building in downtown Sacramento to house Hemispheres, an after-school visual and performing arts academy, the Sacramento Asian Sports Foundation to bring a Community Cultural and Youth Sports Center to South Sacramento, expanded the La Familia Counseling Center facilities and allowed the St. Patrick's Home for Children to provide clothing and educational resources for the center's children. This year's donation will assist in the restoration of the Cathedral of the Blessed Sacrament.

The family's charitable efforts earned Joe and Gavin Maloof the Sports Humanitarian World Hall of Fame's Most Involved Executives Award for 2001. In addition, the organization's work was recognized with the 2002 Pro Team Humanitarian Award.

While Breast Health Awareness had been an important community initiative since the Monarchs inception in 1997, this community effort hit close to home with the diagnosis of former Monarchs guard Edna Campbell in spring of 2002. Edna is the first active WNBA player to be diagnosed with breast cancer. Under the leadership of Joe and Gavin Maloof, the organization quickly took an expanded role in promoting early detection and recognizing breast cancer survivors in Sacramento. Through in-arena fundraising during the 2002 season, more than $15,000 was raised for the Sacramento affiliate of the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation in Edna's name.

Striving toward the goal of providing complete customer and employee satisfaction, Maloof Sports & Entertainment works under the mission statement of "a championship caliber team of people committed to the highest level of performance, service, quality, innovation, community involvement and winning relationships."

"Our family lives by two Maloof business philosophies, cater to our customers and take care of our employees," states Joe Maloof. "We have a long-term commitment to our fans and employees that will make the entire Sacramento community proud to call this organization their own."

Maloof Sports & Entertainment continues to explore ways to enhance the quality of basketball played at ARCO Arena and in December of 2000, that vision became reality when the Kings and Monarchs moved their basketball operations into a $9.1 million, 38,500 square foot training facility. The state-of-the-art structure, built adjacent to ARCO Arena, features two full size basketball courts, separate locker rooms and luxury offices for both teams, as well as the latest in training and rehabilitation amenities.

Celebrated Return to Professional Sports

The Maloof family's interest in purchasing the Kings, Monarchs, and ARCO Arena originated in

THE MALOOF FAMILY

1997 when they contacted then-Managing General Partner Jim Thomas regarding the availability of the teams and arena. On January 14, 1998, the Maloofs completed the purchase of a minority-limited partnership in the organization's franchises and ARCO Arena. Although both the Kings and Monarchs suffered through sub par seasons in 1997-98, the Maloofs continued their pursuit of primary ownership and on January 15, 1999, they subsequently purchased controlling interest, effective July 1, 1999. The NBA Board of Governors unanimously approved the ownership transfer on May 7, 1999, in New York, at which time the Board of Governors appointed Joe Maloof to the Board. The official closing of the ownership transaction took place on July 1, 1999.

Their purchase of the Kings returned the Maloofs to the NBA after a 17-year absence during which the family eagerly pursued an opportunity to rejoin the league. Owners of the Houston Rockets from 1979 through 1982, the Maloofs watched their Rockets rise to elite status, advancing to the NBA Finals for the first time in the team's history in 1981. Following the death of their father, George Maloof, Sr., in 1980, Joe and Gavin Maloof, who were only in their mid-20's at the time, took over responsibility for the Rockets along with their mother, Colleen, their two younger brothers, George, Jr. and Phil, and their sister, Adrienne. The added responsibilities of continuing the growth of the family business forced the Maloofs to sell the Rockets in 1982, but George Maloof's original passion for NBA basketball has remained within the family. In the fall of 2002, the Maloof's assumed ownership of the Monarchs of the WNBA, furthering their commitment to basketball and the Sacramento community.

A 100-Year Model for Diversified Business Success

Palms Casino Is Hottest New Property in Las Vegas

The Maloof Companies are a diversified group of business ventures including hotels, casinos, banking, food and beverage and transportation headquartered in Albuquerque, New Mexico and operated in California, Colorado, Nevada and New Mexico.

In 1994, the family made a $10 million investment in a small piece of property in North Las Vegas, building the quaint 30,000-square foot, 100-room Fiesta Casino Hotel. After a pair of expansive renovations, the 75,000-square foot Fiesta became one of the most profitable hotel casinos per square foot in the entire state of Nevada. In fact, in an August '99 edition of the USA Today, the Fiesta Casino Hotel was voted one of the world's 10 greatest gambling destinations, ranking with the likes of the Bellagio and Caesars Palace in Las Vegas and the Trump Taj Mahal Casino Resort in Atlantic City.

In July of 2000, the Maloof family sold the operating interest in the Fiesta Hotel Casino for over $185 million. The family immediately re-invested the money into the construction of the Palms, a $285 million hotel casino just off the Las Vegas strip with a 42-story tower and 447 guestrooms. The Palms, which opened for business on November 15, 2001, features outstanding customer service, unique architecture and award-winning restaurants, entertainment, nightlife and amenities. In less than four years of operation, the Palms has become the hottest property in Las Vegas with thousands of visitors daily. This year the Palms will undergo an expansion that will include additional rooms and amenities.

In addition to their gaming business, the Maloofs have exclusive proprietorship rights to the distribution of Coors, Miller, Corona, Heineken, Tecate and Guiness products throughout New Mexico. The Maloof Companies also is the largest single shareholder in Wells Fargo Bank, which operates banks and branches in 23 states throughout the Western United States with over $200 billion in assets and 15 million customers.

The Maloofs will continue to expand their business in the entertainment industry this year with the development of Maloof Music, Maloof Television and Maloof Motion Pictures. Working in conjunction with MGM Television Entertainment and its president Hank Cohen, Maloof Television and Maloof Motion Pictures are committed to developing and producing quality television and motion picture entertainment. The Maloof Music label debuts as a joint venture with Interscope/Geffen/A&M Records, the largest record company in the world, under the direction of chairman and legendary music mogul Jimmy Iovine. In fact, Maloof Music is the first joint venture with Interscope/Geffen/A&M without a previous music industry background such as an artist, writer, or producer.

"Our family is extremely excited to broaden our entertainment interests through Maloof Television, Maloof Motion Pictures and Maloof Music," states Phil Maloof. "We are very fortunate to work with two of the industry giants in Jimmy Iovine and Hank Cohen. We look forward to producing quality entertainment in television, motion pictures and music."

Colleen Maloof serves as Chair of the Board of Directors of the Maloof Companies. Joe Maloof is president of the corporation and oversees the banking and sports and entertainment divisions, while Gavin Maloof is vice chairman, also leading the sports and entertainment daily operation. George Maloof, Jr., is an executive vice president and heads the hotel division, and Adrienne Maloof is the secretary/treasurer of the company. Phil Maloof is an executive vice president and the point person for Maloof Music, Maloof Television and Maloof Motion Pictures.

The Maloof family history in the United States dates back to 1892 when Joe Maloof I opened a small general store in northern New Mexico. By the 1930's, the Maloof family acquired the distribution rights to Coors Beer and subsequently established Quality Imports, a wholesale fine liquor distribution center, in 1937. When Joe Maloof I, suffered a major heart attack in 1944, his son, George J. Maloof, left his studies at the University of Colorado to assume responsibility of the Maloof Companies at the age of 21.

George J. Maloof successfully expanded the family business into a group of diversified companies, moving into the hotel and banking sectors in the 1970's.

In 1978, responding to his love for sports and competition, Maloof purchased the majority ownership of the Rockets. However, just two years later during the Rockets' rise to the upper echelon of the NBA, Maloof passed away at the age of 57. His wife, Colleen, assumed control of the entire Maloof operation and rather than selling off the company assets, she enlisted the assistance of her five children. Under Colleen Maloof, the family expanded their beer and liquor distribution operations and later opened their first gaming property in 1992. From 1990 to 1992, the family also owned the Birmingham Fire of the World League of American Football.

In the 100-plus years that have defined the Maloof Companies, customer service and a strong work ethic combined with energy and vision are the qualities that have built this one-time general store into a business model for diversified success. "From the days of my grandfather's general store to our entire operation now, the Maloof family business philosophy always has been centered around complete customer and employee satisfaction. In Sacramento, the fans are our customers and providing a great experience for them is our goal," says Gavin Maloof.

Joe MALOOF

Joseph Maloof is President of the Maloof Companies. Joe's business expertise and leadership qualities have helped enhance and diversify the corporation's growth since his father's death in 1980.

Joe manages the Maloof Companies' nearly 3,500 employees with an open door policy, much like his father did nearly 30 years ago. He also believes in treating customers in a first-class manner and with the utmost respect, and is often seen talking and listening to the fans and customers of the various family businesses.

"My father's business philosophy of taking care of our customers and employees was successful long ago, and all of us in the family have chosen to manage with that same style," states Joe.

His extensive expertise in management, sales and marketing has been invaluable during the company's expansion into banking, hotels and gaming over the past 20 years. He currently serves on the Board of the Coors Distributor Council. In May of 1999, Commissioner David Stern appointed him to the NBA Board of Governors after the Maloof family was unanimously approved by the Board to assume controlling interest of the Kings.

Like all of his family, Joe's charitable efforts are an important aspect of his personal and professional life. He has assisted countless community service groups through the years, including the Boys Club, the University of New Mexico, the American GI Forum, the Airport Little League and the League of Latin American Citizens, to name just a few.

He has a passion for competition, stemming from his days as a prep and collegiate athlete. He was MVP of his high school basketball team at Lawrenceville Prep School (Lawrenceville, N.J.), and was a two-time letterwinner as a defensive back at the University of New Mexico, where he graduated in 1979 with a degree in business.

Joe resides in Sacramento less than two miles from ARCO Arena. He enjoys working out and is an avid tennis player.

Maloof Family

Gavin MALOOF

As Vice Chairman of Maloof Companies, Gavin Maloof assists in all aspects of the family's diversified business ventures while overseeing the company's sports and entertainment operations. He is dedicated to maintaining and building the corporation's national and international prominence and spearheading a new era of growth for the company.

Although Gavin is relatively young in terms of professional sports and entertainment ownership, his experience is extensive. Following the death of his father, George J. Maloof, Sr., in 1980, Gavin was named president of the Houston Rockets at the age of 24, making him the youngest owner and operator in major professional sports history. The Rockets enjoyed immediate success under Gavin's leadership, advancing to the NBA Finals for the first time in franchise history in 1981. With the likes of Moses Malone, Calvin Murphy and Elvin Hayes, the Rockets qualified for postseason play in all three seasons under the Maloof family ownership.

In addition to his front office management with the Rockets, Gavin also served as team president during the Maloof's tenure as owners of the Birmingham Fire of the World League of American Football (WLAF) from 1990-92.

Gavin has always placed an importance on his community service work. Over the years he has served on the Board of Directors for several charitable causes, including those focusing on the well being of children.

An active sports fan and participant, Gavin was an outstanding football player at the New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell, N.M., and at Trinity University in San Antonio. He graduated from Trinity in 1979 with a speech and communications degree. This year, Gavin will be inducted into the New Mexico Military Institute Hall of Fame as one of their most successful graduates, an honor bestowed on only a handful of people in the school's long history.

Gavin resides in Sacramento less than two miles from ARCO Arena. He enjoys playing golf in his spare time.

Colleen J. MALOOF

Chair of the Board, Maloof Companies
Trustee for the Estate of George J. Maloof

Colleen J. Maloof is Chair of the Board of the Maloof companies and trustee for the estate of George J. Maloof. Throughout the key years that George Maloof built the Maloof Companies into the largest group of family-owned enterprises in New Mexico, Colleen was an instrumental partner in their prosperity. Faced with the challenge of carrying on the family tradition of success after her husband's passing, she has grown the Maloof Companies as never before.

Colleen Maloof is a major force behind the family's continued strength and the Maloof's corporate and civic leadership. She is a leader in her community and has received a number of honors and awards, including the Associated Students of University of New Mexico Award for Dedication and Service, Mexican-American Foundation of America Women of the Year Award and the Image de Albuquerque Award, which was presented to the Maloof family for their significant contributions to Hispanic business development.

Colleen has played a pivotal role in developing the "Maloof style" managerial skills of her children, Joe, Gavin, George Jr., Phil and Adrienne. She has worked to ensure that company policies and practices remain true to the family motto, "The Customer is King."

George MALOOF

Adhering to his father's policy of learning the family business "from the ground up," George J. Maloof, Jr. has successfully established himself as an innovator in the hotel and gaming industries.

George is the leading force behind the building and operation of the hottest new property in Las Vegas, the Palms, which is owned by the Maloof family, and has become one of the most sought-after destinations in the entertainment capital of the world.

As President of Maloof Hotels since 1989, George has overseen the operation of hotels throughout the Southwest and California, including the Fiesta Casino Hotel in Las Vegas, the Central Palace Casino in Central City, Colorado and the Palms.

George has very strong ties to the Las Vegas community. He is a UNLV alumnus, having received his bachelor's degree in business administration (hotel management) in 1987.

In addition to his work in the gaming industry, George is also a member of the Patriarchal Order of the Holy Cross of Jerusalem and the Las Vegas Chapter of Legatus.

Adrienne MALOOF-NASSIF

Whether it's marketing, fashion design, promotion, or politics, Adrienne Maloof-Nassif is involved in all aspects as well as the overall leadership of the Maloof Companies.

Adrienne's marketing and promotional contributions have been invaluable in the Sacramento Kings becoming one of the most recognizable franchises in all of professional sports. In addition, her lifelong interest in competitive professional dancing has allowed her to lend her expertise to the Kings' widely popular Royal Court Dance Team.

Philanthropic work also is a personal passion for Adrienne. Because of her love and concern for animals and children, Adrienne has joined forces with the Sacramento SPCA to serve as an honorary spokesperson. Her financial contributions allowed the SPCA to complete a new shelter in February of 2002 and develop the Adrienne Maloof Camp Kindness program, which allows underprivileged youth to learn the proper care and handling of animals. Her Camp Kindness program was so successful in Sacramento, that she is currently in the process of developing a similar program for the Los Angeles SPCA.

Growing up in Albuquerque, New Mexico, she was one of the country's top ranked junior tennis players and went on to play collegiate tennis at the University of New Mexico, where she earned a bachelor's degree in political science.

Adrienne resides in Los Angeles with her husband Paul and their son, Gavin. She loves to spend time with her son as well as her dog, Itty Bitty, and her adopted cats, Spanky and Lulu. She also enjoys reading and working out.

Maloof Family

Phil MALOOF

Phil Maloof is an executive vice president with Maloof Companies and the point person for the family's newest business ventures, Maloof Music, Maloof Television and Maloof Motion Pictures,

A former senator for the state of New Mexico, Phil was one of the youngest elected officials in the country, appointed to the New Mexico State Senate following the election of Mayor Martin Chavez, and subsequently re-elected to a full four-year term from his west Albuquerque district in 1996, before running for U.S. Congress in 2000.

Phil was known for his tough stance on crime while representing New Mexico, becoming the first state senator in the country to sponsor the Three Strikes, You're Out law, in addition to helping pass several bills aimed at improving school funding.

An outstanding all-around athlete, Phil played quarterback collegiately at New Mexico State, before earning his post-secondary degree from the University of New Mexico.

Phil resides in Las Vegas and also has a home in Los Angeles, where he works to develop the Maloof Music label as well as Maloof Television and Maloof Motion Pictures. In addition, he assists in the other Maloof family businesses, including the Sacramento Kings and the Palms hotel and casino property. He enjoys playing basketball and traveling in his spare time.

John Whisenant

General Manager & Head Coach

John Whisenant returns to the Monarchs for his third season as Head Coach and his second season as General Manager, after spending one WNBA season as assistant general manager, under then GM, Jerry Reynolds.

Midway through the 2003 WNBA season, Whisenant added the title of head coach to his assistant general manager duties for the Sacramento Monarchs. He finished the season with an impressive 12-4 (75%) regular season record and led the Monarchs to the WNBA Western Conference Finals for the second time in franchise history. In 2004 Whisenant again led the Monarchs to the WNBA Western Conference Finals for their second consecutive appearance as they finished the year with an 18-16 regular season record. His current overall record with the Monarchs is 30-20 (60%).

Whisenant brings more than 30 years of basketball experience to the Sacramento Monarchs. From his role as head coach with a 51-35 record (59%) and vice president of basketball operations for the New Mexico Slam (IBL/CBA), to his various business interests, Whisenant delivers a passion for basketball and the experience necessary to help the Monarchs reach the next level of excellence.

Whisenant began his basketball career at Connors State College in Warner, Oklahoma (averaged 20.5 ppg) and then continued on to New Mexico as a player for the New Mexico State Aggies where he was a starting guard for Coach Fresley Askew. "Whiz" was NMSU's second leading scorer in his senior season, averaging 13.1 points-per-game.

Upon completion of his playing days, Whiz immediately went into coaching at Coffeyville Community Junior College (Kansas). While he was an assistant at Coffeyville, the Red Ravens were 48-10 (83%).

In four seasons as head coach as Arizona Western (Yuma), Whisenant's teams won three league championships and went to nationals all three times. His record was an impressive 97-30 (76%).

After Arizona Western, Whiz joined the staff of former New Mexico Lobo Coach Norm Ellenberger as assistant head basketball coach. During his seven years, the Lobos went on to a 137-62 (69%) record including two WAC Championships and four post-season appearances. The 1977-78 team ended the season leading the nation in scoring and ranked third nationally.

Since his coaching days with the Lobos, Whiz has gone on to become a successful businessman with interests in commercial real estate, home construction and horse racing. He has also worked as a consultant to the Maloof family, advising them on their acquisition of the Sacramento Kings. Whiz has kept his passion for basketball burning, serving as head coach of his son's AAU team in Albuquerque. Even at the AAU level, Whiz dominated. His team won 176 of 192 games (92%) including six state and regional championships. In 1995, his team won the BCI National Championship.

A native of Gore, Oklahoma, Whisenant is married to Joyce (Mowery) Whisenant, a former women's basketball player. They have five children: Stan (former University of New Mexico basketball player), Daniel (former Air Force Academy basketball player), Johnette, (former women's basketball player and current girls' middle school basketball coach), Justin (former Dartmouth College football and basketball player) and Jordyn (former women's basketball player).

Whisenant holds a bachelor of science in physical education from New Mexico State and a MA in history from Pittsburg State University in Pittsburg, Kansas.
